Goal of Education and Admission Policy at the Graduate School of Engineering

Goal of Education

The goal of Hokkaido University Graduate School of Engineering is through the succession and creation of study, to nurture individuals who have a solid education background and advanced technical skills in the field of engineering; who have knowledge in diverse areas with which they can adapt to globalization, ongoing advancements in science and technology, and the trend toward interdisciplinary approaches; and who have discernment and the ability to meet practical challenges.

Admission Policy

This graduate school accepts applicants who have graduated with a major in a field of science and engineering and want to obtain a Master's or Doctoral degree in engineering as well as promising mature applicants who gained work experience after completing an undergraduate and Master's degree, and now are interested in earning a doctoral degree.

The graduate school also actively accepts international students. Mature and international students who pass the entrance examination may enroll in either April or October.

The master's course entrance examination includes a written exam that covers language skills and field−specific knowledge and an oral exam. The written exam is given to measure the applicant's level of understanding of basic and specialized subjects in the fields of study in each division, but to ensure that the university accepts students with a broad range of skills, students may select their examination subjects from many different subjects.

The doctoral course entrance examination includes a written exam that covers language skills and field−specific knowledge and an oral exam to evaluate the applicant's research skills.

In some divisions, individuals with outstanding academic records or with extensive research and development experience at companies or other institutions may be exempted from taking the written exam.

1. About Double Degree program

Double degree program is educational program established by official agreement between Graduate School of Engineering, Hokkaido University and partner universities and satisfied the requirements of each of the universities.

Academic degrees of the same level are separately conferred to the students who have completed the requirements of both universities. Such degrees will be conferred on qualified students by each of the universities. Individual program's plan is established by the agreement between Graduate School of Engineering, Hokkaido University and partner universities.

Candidates accepted to Double degree program enroll into the English Engineering Education program of Graduate School of Engineering, Hokkaido University and their study plan is based on the curriculum of the program.

2. About e³ Program

International graduate program in English (Master's and Doctoral degree) was first established at Graduate School of Engineering, Hokkaido University in the year of 2000 as English Graduate Program in Social Environmental Engineering (EGPSEE) in order to attract qualified international students, who speak little or no Japanese. The e³ program has gradually expended to cover the other fields of engineering, and was renamed English Engineering Education Program (hereafter referred as e³ program) from 2007. The e³ program comprises of 13 divisions, encompassing all fields of Engineering.

The e³ program aims to educate together international and Japanese students in both Master's and Doctoral degrees in a multicultural and inter-disciplinary environment in English. The goal of the e³ program is to foster globally competitive individuals, engineers and researchers, who possess in-depth knowledge, are equipped with up-to-date technologies, have a global mindset, and are able to work, taking leadership in various fields.

To foster the individuals described above and achieve its goal, the e³ program embraces the diversity of origins of the applicants and recruits students from all over the world.
